

BROOKLYN NEWS.

DE'S BODY IN A SEWER PIPE.

Connelly, a Servant, Admits She Threw It There.

Is the Mother and Says the Child Was Stillborn.

A case that may prove one of infantile was reported to Coroner Kane, of Brooklyn, this morning. Ann Connelly, an unmarried woman, who is twenty-eight years old, and the mother of the child, is now in the Seney Hospital, a prisoner, pending the result of a coroner's inquest.

She was called as a domestic in a household of Daniel O. Ketchum, sixth street. On Monday evening a girl was taken ill. The following day Mrs. Ketchum noticed that the child was dead. The child was found in a sewer pipe.

The police questioned the girl. After some hesitation she admitted that the child was dead. She said the child was born on Monday night. She kept the child in a closet and threw the body into the sewer pipe. She said that the child was stillborn.

LUMINAL WAS MERCIFUL.

Did Not Prosecute the Youths Who Felled His Whiskers.

Three young men knelt aside by side in the door of the Clymer Street Police Station, Williamsburg, last night and begged for mercy. They so affected the complainant in the case, Alexander Blumenthal, that he declined to make any charge, and the young men were released.

SERVANT SUES WOOLSEY.

Mrs. Dempsey Sues the Millionaire Who Owns Her Wages.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., July 26.—A millionaire Edward J. Woolsey, of Astoria, was a defendant before Justice Ingram in the police court today in a suit brought by Mrs. Rowena Dempsey, of 39 Hopkins avenue, who claimed $38.35 due her for wages.

CLUBBED HIS SON.

But the Younger Lawless Was Beating His Sister.

Patrick Lawless, a middle-aged man, was held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, on a charge of assaulting his son Joseph, who is now in the Cumberland Street Hospital, Brooklyn. The police say that Lawless, who lives at 91 Sanford street, had great provocation for what he did. Young Lawless was beating his sister. The father told him to stop and then Joseph attempted to strike his father. Lawless picked up a club and struck Joseph on the head. The father then went to the police station and the assault and surrendered himself.

ROBBED HIS FATHER.

New York Boy Arrested in Brooklyn with Stolen Jewelry.

Alfred Solomon, nineteen years old, was arrested in the Butler Street Police Court, Brooklyn, this morning, on the charge of robbing his father, Nathan Solomon, of 267 East One Hundred and Second street, New York, of $200 worth of jewelry. The father was arrested last night. The police found some of the stolen jewelry in the boy's possession.

BURGLAR AT SEVENTEEN.

Mrs. Lynch Found David Strasser in Her Cellar.

Justice Greeting, in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day held David Strasser, seventeen years old, on a charge of burglary. Mrs. Kate Lynch, of 183 Marcy avenue, found the young man in her cellar last night, wrenching a lock from a door.

Broke Into Gresham's Laboratory.

Jerry Connor, a well-known character about New York, was held for examination by Justice Tabor in the Butler Street Police Court, Brooklyn, this morning on the charge of breaking into the laboratory of James Gresham on Eighth street, last night.

Fell Down the Elevator Shaft.

Sam Rusan, thirty-four years old, of 200 Nassau street, Brooklyn, while at work on the fourth floor of 10 White street this morning, fell down the elevator shaft to the cellar, injuring his leg and inflicting a severe scalp wound. He was taken to the Chambers Street Hospital.

Killed by Fall from a Window.

Coroner Kane, in the case of Catherine H. Hester, is dying in St. Catherine's Hospital, New York, of a fall from a window.

BUSY BROOKLYN BURGLARS.

Residences and Stores Entered, but Only One Arrest Made.

James McGowan, eighteen years old, of 213 Navy street, Brooklyn, was arrested this morning by Detective Doherty, on a charge of breaking into the apartments of Mrs. Hannah Pearson, 229 Navy street, Feb. 12 last, and stealing jewelry valued at $150.

The police have been looking for him since the burglary. Detective Delahanty met him on Nassau street, and took him into custody. The prisoner denies the charge.

During the night thieves broke into the apartments of James J. Nolan, 246 Sumner avenue, and stole a gold watch and other jewelry valued at $150.

Mrs. Anna Hinchman, of 171 India street, told the police this morning that some thief had entered her home during her absence and stolen a gold watch and $15 in money.

Three dollars in pennies were stolen from the money drawer in John P. Nelson's home, 218 Hamilton avenue, at an early hour this morning.

Burglars got into the apartments of Charles J. Gates avenue, this morning by unlocking the door with skeleton keys, and stole jewelry worth $150.

Mrs. Morris Smith, of Coney Island, reported this morning that thieves had visited a house on the corner of Coney Island and stolen $15 worth of property.

Mrs. Katherine Hoerter, of 159 Washington street, Brooklyn, to-day reported that some thief had entered her basement of her home and stolen $16.

STABBED WITH SCISSORS.

Policeman Munday Had a Lively Time with James Stanton.

James Stanton, who lives in South Brooklyn, was taken to the Tombs to-day, heavily handcuffed, by Policeman Munday, who made a charge of assault against him. The policeman had been stabbed in the left side up the man, and had one leg of his trousers pulled nearly to his whole length by a cut that was intended to give him a quick death.

Stanton got off a Hamilton ferry-boat at about 11:20 last night. He had been drinking heavily and became very noisy. He was taken to the Tombs to-day.

Officer Munday arrested the man, who drew a pair of scissors from an inside pocket and stabbed the policeman in the left side up the man, and had one leg of his trousers pulled nearly to his whole length by a cut that was intended to give him a quick death.

Then Stanton aimed a blow at Munday's stomach, which would have ended his career, but the policeman caught the man's arm and drew him out. The man then drew his knife and struck the policeman in the head. The policeman then drew his gun and fired at the man.

Stanton was taken to the Tombs to-day. He was very angry and refused to give any name. He was held for examination to-day.

STILETTO AND BAD MONEY.

Both Found in the Possession of Alleged Counterfeiters.

Raphael Vincenzo and Francisco Yoroi were arrested in the case of a counterfeit money. Vincenzo and Yoroi attempted to pass a counterfeit silver dollar and a counterfeit gold piece. The police found a stiletto and bad money in their possession.

Mrs. Dempsey said she had been hired by Woolsey on Jan. 24 last, but no agreement had been made as to the amount of wages. She was taken to the Tombs to-day.

John Smith, a thirty-five year old, of 151 First avenue, was arrested this morning on a charge of assaulting his new neighbor, John Smith, of 151 First avenue, who lives at 7 Boerum street, Brooklyn.

He was taken to the Tombs to-day. He was very angry and refused to give any name. He was held for examination to-day.

CORBIN'S ROSE CENSURED.

But for Its Negligence Jesse Spangler Would Not Be Alive.

A coroner's jury in the case of Jesse Spangler, aged ten, who crashed under the gates of the Long Island Railroad on Atlantic avenue on July 10, and was instantly killed by a train, returned a verdict this morning, charging the company with negligence. The company was found to be negligent in not properly securing the gates.

Two Charges of Assault.

John McKen, twenty-years old, of 314 Fifth street, Brooklyn, was arrested in the Butler Street Police Court this morning and held for examination on two charges of assault.

Pier and Paterno Let Down Easily.

Tommy Pier, a carpenter, and Pasquale Paterno, a butcher, were arrested before Justice Tabor in the Butler Street Police Court, Brooklyn, this morning on the charge of building a tenement house at 572 Broadway street, Brooklyn.

Cut His Throat While Despondent.

Patrick Valtone, thirty-three years old, of 12 Freeman street, Brooklyn, was taken to the Tombs to-day. He had been out of work for some time, and while despondent at 6 o'clock last night, he cut his throat. It was said at the hospital that he had been out of work for some time.

NO EVIDENCE OF FRAUD SHOWN.

The Injunction Against the Clerks to Committees Dissolved.

Though Justice Bartlett Admits There Was Politics in It.

William H. Leaycraft and his eight associate clerks to Committees of the Brooklyn Board of Aldermen, seem to be nearer than ever to-day to the goal when their efforts to get their salaries will be rewarded.

Ever since they displaced a corps of Aldermen in January last, a vast number of injunctions, mandamus orders to show cause, and other legal obstructions have been put in their way.

A decision by Justice Bartlett, this morning clears up the whole question. Justice Bartlett decides that the resolution of the Board of Aldermen appointing the clerks was legal.

He decides, too, that fraud or a desire to waste the funds is not shown. The General Term and Court of Appeals seem to be the only obstacles in the way of the clerks now.

The decision of Justice Bartlett in part is unable to discover from the affidavits presented as a matter of fact that the Common Council acted fraudulently in passing the resolution.

The proof does show that the majority acted as political partisans, but that they acted in accordance with the law and in the discharge of their duty.

In all the papers, and in view of the authorities cited, I do not see how this injunction can be upheld.

Motion to continue injunction denied and injunction dissolved, with costs, to all concerned.

A FIVE-CENT THIEF.

Smith Claimed that Ascher Cheated Him on a Pipe.

For stealing a paper of tobacco valued at five cents John Smith, thirty-three years old, of 73 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, was taken to the Tombs to-day. He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

Smith claimed that Ascher cheated him on a pipe. He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

He was charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

MAY GET ENGLISH CAPITAL.

People Receive Offers.

Unless Congress Acts Speedily We Will Lose the Big Ditch.

There is a probability that the Nicaragua Canal may pass into the hands of English capitalists. The Nicaragua Canal Reorganization Committee, headed by Judge Henry E. Howland, of 35 Wall street, a member of the Nicaragua Canal Reorganization Committee, admitted to an "Evening World" reporter to-day that Smith M. Weed and John R. Bartlett had gone to England on the invitation of English capitalists, further the desire of investing in the canal project.

He expressed the fear that unless Congress did something with the Canal bill within a short time, the Reorganization Committee might be forced to accept assistance from England or wherever they could get it, and that the canal might be built with foreign capital. He said it would take about $50,000,000 to construct the canal, and the money had to be obtained somehow.

As to the political complications which might result from the building of the canal, Judge Howland said that he had nothing to say about it. He said in a pointed manner England's course in regard to the canal.

The Nicaragua Canal Reorganization Committee was sold by Receiver Thomas B. Atkins about a month ago for $100,000. The committee was then organized.

The bill pending in the lower branch of Congress provides for the Government to acquire the canal and to build it with American capital.

The members of the Reorganization Committee are confident that they will be able to set a day for its opening.

Under Sheriff Mullins went on a trip to Michigan and Wilson to Ohio when they were arrested. They were taken to the Tombs to-day.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

They were taken to the Tombs to-day. They were charged with stealing a paper of tobacco from a patrol wagon, locked over night in a gloomy cell in the Adams street police station and landed before the bar in Justice Vane's court this morning.

SIX OF THE COLORADO TAR-AND-FEATHER GANG ARRESTED.

Denver Detectives Threatened at Colorado Springs.

They Are Typewriters and Would Like a Backer.

But Mrs. Malton Says "Pshaw, What Nonsense."

Madge Malton and May Seaton are two little typewriter girls. They are cousins and bosom friends. Each one is fifteen years old, and each one contributes to the support of a widowed mother.

Madge lives at 131 Henry street, and is employed in a lawyer's office at 116 Nassau street, in the room adjoining Lawyer Mullen's office, where another typewriter girl attracted the attention of the whole community not long ago by being shot to death in a very suspicious manner.

May lives in East New York and just now is out of employment.

These girls have decided to walk to San Francisco and only need two things to start with. The two things needed are a financial backer and mamma's consent. A glance at the situation is convincing that they will succeed in securing the first prerequisite long before they gain the latter.

Their plan originated in this manner: May spent the last week visiting her mother in the city, but they have not seen each other for some time.

Each has a consuming ambition to make more money for her mother. During the week they talked over all sorts of projects to that end, sometimes sitting up in bed to do so when the rest of the household was asleep.

They had talked over all sorts of schemes without discovering anything promising until they suddenly came across the statement in a newspaper that a man named William Mullen had walked from Washington to San Francisco and earned $50,000 thereby. Just what for and how he did it was not clear, but that does not matter. Both girls were determined to do more.

"That's the ticket," cried May. "At last!" echoed Madge. If one interesting man could make $50,000 by walking to San Francisco, the performance must be worth much more to two pretty girls.

They are both pedestrians. They had walked from the Brooklyn Bridge to Fourteenth street in 18 minutes, and had made the trip about out to May's house, in East New York, and back more than an hour.

They looked up San Francisco, and were a little startled to discover that it is just about as far to the west as Liverpool is to the east of New York. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They fully measured the perils that might be the path of two pretty girls on a long tramp like that, but they were moved to go dressed as boys. They confessed that they had never worn boys' clothing, but they decided to do so.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

IF MAMMA SAYS YES.

Madge and May Will Tramp to San Francisco.

They Are Typewriters and Would Like a Backer.

But Mrs. Malton Says "Pshaw, What Nonsense."

Madge Malton and May Seaton are two little typewriter girls. They are cousins and bosom friends. Each one is fifteen years old, and each one contributes to the support of a widowed mother.

Madge lives at 131 Henry street, and is employed in a lawyer's office at 116 Nassau street, in the room adjoining Lawyer Mullen's office, where another typewriter girl attracted the attention of the whole community not long ago by being shot to death in a very suspicious manner.

May lives in East New York and just now is out of employment.

These girls have decided to walk to San Francisco and only need two things to start with. The two things needed are a financial backer and mamma's consent. A glance at the situation is convincing that they will succeed in securing the first prerequisite long before they gain the latter.

Their plan originated in this manner: May spent the last week visiting her mother in the city, but they have not seen each other for some time.

Each has a consuming ambition to make more money for her mother. During the week they talked over all sorts of projects to that end, sometimes sitting up in bed to do so when the rest of the household was asleep.

They had talked over all sorts of schemes without discovering anything promising until they suddenly came across the statement in a newspaper that a man named William Mullen had walked from Washington to San Francisco and earned $50,000 thereby. Just what for and how he did it was not clear, but that does not matter. Both girls were determined to do more.

"That's the ticket," cried May. "At last!" echoed Madge. If one interesting man could make $50,000 by walking to San Francisco, the performance must be worth much more to two pretty girls.

They are both pedestrians. They had walked from the Brooklyn Bridge to Fourteenth street in 18 minutes, and had made the trip about out to May's house, in East New York, and back more than an hour.

They looked up San Francisco, and were a little startled to discover that it is just about as far to the west as Liverpool is to the east of New York. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They fully measured the perils that might be the path of two pretty girls on a long tramp like that, but they were moved to go dressed as boys. They confessed that they had never worn boys' clothing, but they decided to do so.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.

They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco. They decided to go to San Francisco, and they decided to go to San Francisco.